Please update the specification regarding the date of the priority document which is 9/20/202. An IDS was submitted 3/15/04 but copies of all the references are not found in the file and so have not been considered. Upon resolution of the issues discussed below, further searching and/or consideration may be required.

A reading of the specification reveals the intended invention may be encompassed by the field of chemotaxis of pathogenic bacteria where an attractant is combined with antibiotics. As presented, the claims read on any flavored antibiotic composition.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Billing.

Billing (Quarterly Review of Biology) entitled "Antimicrobial Functions of Spices" teaches on page 4 column 2 that flavoring substances inhibit or kill food spoilage microorganisms and that some spices have antibacterial properties.

The claims are drawn to compositions that are antibacterial and flavored. All the features of the claims are taught by Billing for the same function as claimed.

Art Unit: 1655

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

As presented in the specification as originally filed, the invention appears to be directed to a pharmaceutical that is a combination of a bacterial attractant and an antibiotic. No such composition is disclosed in the specification and no results of such a composition are found. The discussion in the specification regarding taste preferences of various bacteria is queried.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The claims must be carefully rewritten in accordance with standard US Patent Practice.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Steinberg (US 2005/0058744 A1) teaches flavored antimicrobial compositions.

Goodwin (6,395,505) teaches chemotaxis.

Coats (6,545,043) teaches attracting pests.

Soll (US 2004/0076643 A1) teaches chemoattractants and antibiotics.

Kiessling (US 2004/0248801 A1) teaches chemotaxis.
